“ If we were asked to describe Glenda in one word, we can attest that she was the personification of "generous." She was generous with her time, generous with her resources, generous of spirit and most importantly, generous in her boundless love for her family and friends. She was the most loving and giving person we know. Glenda always put her family and other loved ones first, never thinking of herself, but rather putting everyone else's needs and wants above her own. She was the first to volunteer to help anyone in need and the first one anyone would think of to ask when they needed help. The axiom goes, "If you want something done, ask a busy person." Glenda was industrious to the extreme, always busy doing projects for others. There was never anyone who worked harder than she did. She loved to say, "We're Robinsons" (her maiden name was Robinson), which meant that she always felt the well-deserved pride of being a strong Southern lady, proud of her hard work, strength, toughness and resilience. Glenda's hard work for others was always done with a generous spirit and a sincere desire to make the rest of our lives better in a way that only she could. Glenda was forever making the lives of her family and friends more enriched and profoundly better by her hard work, loyalty, generosity and dedication to all of us whom she loved. She always believed that she could help, that she could fix things, that she could make it all better and we've watched her do it throughout her life, especially for family members in need of a hero to come to the rescue. She was a true heroine, one who made an immeasurable difference in the lives of others. We can attest to the beautiful spirit she exhibited towards us as her sister and nephew and of numerous other family members of whom we are personally aware. But, having had the privilege of being blessed to have had Glenda in our lives, we are absolutely confident that there are countless others who could recount their own personal stories of the profound difference for good that Glenda's presence in their lives made to them. All of us who had the sincere privilege to know her were touched by Glenda's warmth, her love and her generosity. The impact that Glenda made in this world will never be forgotten and we will miss her more than words can say. We love you, Glenda.

“ My motto was I want to be a Mercurio. I meant it to the very bottom of my heart. I meet them in the late 70's and they never stopped being a family I adored. I would run into Glenda everywhere with Pete or with Grandkids always a hug ,always a smile, always introducing me to each grandchild. Her adoration of Pete, Dino, Karen & Valentina were evident always as she stopped to name each of their kids, kids name. She was funny and quick and kind and oh so caring to those she loved. I last gossiped with her at the sad death of her brother in law John. Where Pete and Dino had to shush us. Her memory is already a blessing and I am richer for having known her. My deepest condolences to my extended family.
