“ Tomorrow will be a month that you went to live in Paradise with God and all those who left before you. I love you my “Big Brother” Bob loves and misses you like crazy. You touched so many lives and I am so proud of the legacy you left behind. I miss you more than words and would give anything to see you one more time , one more hug. I will love you and carry you in my heart forever. Rest easy brother, I can’t say we’re not still hurting down here but we are all staying in touch and being a family helping each other. I love you and I am so grateful that we always said “ I Love You” before we got off the phone or left wherever we were together, and the random “ I Love You “ text. I know you are with me all the time. I love you Big Brother

“ I just learned of your death, I had been calling and calling with such fear of this moment. I shared so many laughs with Jason, so many great times . His friendship and brotherhood were a light to me in some of my darkest times. He was a man that was always there to stand tall, do the right thing and show up when you needed him. I can’t tell you how few and far between this people are now and his presence and brotherhood in my life will go forever missed .

“ Words cannot express the feeling of emptiness I will have in my heart in missing you The relationship we had together was like having another son. You have always been a kind hearted person thinking of everyone before yourself. You always went out of your way for me & my family. Your laugh always made me feel happy no matter what mood I could have been in. This I will always remember! Jason you may have to wait a while but we will be together again. God Bless.

“ I think we meet when we were about 14, we shared the same birthday and we lived on the same road. We became the best of friends throughout high school and enjoyed each other's company. We went on adventures together together with David in downtown and in Niceville where we both loved to roller skate. We shared common friends and we both rode in the same car for our senior prom. I remember the time you though it would be a good idea to play softball with a basketball and it ended up smacking you in the eye, you had the biggest black eye I have ever seen. We had our senior graduation at your house where I got drunk for the 1st time. We both enlisted in the Army and went our separate ways, we would talk every now and then late at night on Facebook when I worked nights and you were on a business trip. I last saw you at our twenty year reunion, you hadn't changed a bit. We hadn't spoke in a few years before this happened which made me very sad, they can't take our memories away from us though. I will miss you my friend! James D Burnham.

“ Jason was a second father to me and watched me grow up. He treated me like his own from the very beginning and I'll forever be thankful for him. I can still hear his contagious laugh that would make everyone else around him smile and laugh too. My heart is heavy to know he his no longer physically here but the memories he left me with is something I will cherish forever and am thankful to have. It makes me smile to see all the memories people have of you and how much you were Loved. I pray you visit me and your family in my dreams, we all miss you so much already. I know Steph and Katie will continue to make you so proud, they always did. Love you pops, heaven definitely gained a special one when they got you.
